I've traveled to a lot of places, and I've done lots of exciting things. Last year, during the summer, I spent five weeks traveling around Central America. First I flew to Guatemala. I stayed in the historic city of Antigua, and then I visited the Mayan ruins of Tikal in the middle of the jungle. The pyramids, the Great Plaza, and the Great Jaguar are spectacular sights. From there I got a bus to Belize and went scuba diving in the coral reefs. The famous Blue Hole is over 300 meters in diameter and 125 meters deep. It's the best diving I've ever experienced. In Costa Rica, I climbed up the Irazú Volcano, and went white-water rafting. My last stop was Panama. I visited the canal, and was impressed with the great number of ships. The Panamanians are expanding the canal to allow huge ships to cross it. The work will be finished around 2025.

Now, I've tried some unusual food in my travels. On this trip, I tried sea turtle eggs in Nicaragua. The eggs are eaten with hot sauce, and they taste a bit fishy. But in all my travels, I have never had grasshopper or scorpion. I've seen people eat these, but honestly I don't want to try them.

I haven't been to Colombia and Venezuela yet, but I'd sure like to go. There are still lots of places in this world that I'd like to see and things that I'd like to do.

Language Builder

Explain that most verbs that are irregular in the simple past tense also have irregular past participles; for example, go—went—gone and see—saw—seen. Most verbs that are regular in the simple past tense have the same past participle form; for example, climb—climbed—climbed.

Have students look at the irregular past participles at the back of the Student Book on page 83.

Teaching Tip

It is important that students develop a good ear for natural-sounding English. Tell them that when they are not sure if they have the grammatical form correct, they should ask themselves Does it sound right? Over time, they will gradually develop a feel for the natural sounds and rhythms of English.

Additional Activity

Students work in groups to talk about a trip they have taken. Vote on who has had the most exciting trip.

- A blue hole is a sinkhole, or vertical cave in the water.
- The Great Blue Hole, off the coast of Belize, is over 300 meters (984 feet) across and 125 meters (410 feet) deep.

Language Builder

After we say a general statement about the past with the present perfect, we switch to the simple past, even if the time is not mentioned. For example: I've eaten snake before, but I didn't like it.

Present Perfect Tense

Present perfect tense expresses the completion of the action or task of the present.
