Teaching Tip

Introduce additional words and expressions that will make the lesson more interesting and useful. For example, if there are places in the students' neighborhoods that are not on the map, such as a library or a gas station, teach these words as well.

Additional Activity

Write a sentence on the board describing a location of a place in the picture on pages 56 and 57. For example, write: The convenience store is on Sixth Ave. Then have students close their books. In groups students write five more sentences without looking at the picture. Then they open their books to see if their sentences were correct or not. Have a few volunteers write their sentences on the board.

- No one knows exactly when the first maps were made. However, the Babylonians knew the art of surveying and made accurate maps sometime between 3000 and 2000 B.C.E.
- There is an amazingly accurate map of Central America and the Caribbean made in 1514. It shows the islands of Cuba, Jamaica, Hispaniola, and Puerto Rico along with many of the smaller islands.
- Now with computer programs it is possible to look at an accurate map of almost any city in the world in seconds. In some cases, you can even have a “street view” and take a virtual walk down the street.

Language Builder

Point out the abbreviations for street names used on the map.
