Question 3: (True or False) Comprehension:

Use the information in the passage to answer the questions below.

A VETO ON VIDEO GAME

Our society is so computerized and dehumanized that kids don't need one more reason to avoid playing outside or going for a walk or talking with a friend. I'd still feel this way even if there were nothing wrong with games whose objectives are to kill and destroy.

From Questions below shade in the letter T if the statement is True or F if the statement is False.

1.The beauty of this game is that even very young players can have the fun of vicariously shooting animals.	T	F
2.My five-year-old daughter told me she enjoyed playing Duck Hunt at a friend's house.	T	F
3.My son told me he hates "learning games" the least because they are "too easy"	T	F
4.Our society is not so computerized and dehumanized.	T	F
5.We cannot explain our opinion effectively through persuasion.	T	F
6. kids love to play violent games.	T	F
7. There's the game with my favorite title-an obvious attempt to combine a graceful sport with exciting action-Skate or Die.	T	F
8. kids don't need more reason to avoid playing outside or going for a walk or talking with a friend.	T	F

Use the information in the passage to answer the questions below.

We are the kind of parents who don't promote video games. We are among the ever-shrinking group of parents known as video game hold outs. We don't prefer to buy a video game set. I said you know you are not going to get Nintendo he said "I know I'm not going to get it from you, but I might get it from him, Alas, Santa, too let him down. I don't think that playing a video game now and then is really harmful to children. But the children I know are so obsessed with the games that they prompted at least one 2nd grade teacher to ban the word Nintendo from the classroom. When I asked my 7-year-old if the teacher wouldn't let the kids talk about the games because that's all they were talking about he said "no that's all we were thinking about." Our society is so computerized and dehumanized that kids don't need one more reason to avoid playing outside.

Question 3: (True or False) Comprehension:

A VETO ON VIDEO GAME

Our society is so computerized and dehumanized those kids don't need one more reason to avoid playing outside or going for a walk or talking with a friend. I'd still feel this way even if there were nothing wrong with games whose objectives are to kill and destroy.

I know, I know. There are games other than those like Rampage, Robocop, Motor Cross Maniacs, Bionic Commando, Dr. Doom's Revenge, Guerrilla War, and Super Street Fighter. But aren't the violent games the one the kids love to play for hours? And hours. And hours. My son told me he likes the "killing games" the best, hasn't had much experience with "sport games," and likes "learning games" the least because they are "too easy".

(Manufacturers take note.) My five-year-old daughter told me she enjoyed playing Duck Hunt at a friend's house. The beauty of this game is that even very young players can have the fun of vicariously shooting animals. And then there's the game with my favorite title-an obvious attempt to combine a graceful sport with exciting action-Skate or Die.

Use the information in the passage to answer the questions below.

Use the information in the passage to answer the questions below.

We are the kind of parents who don't promote video games. We are among the ever-shrinking group of parents known as video game hold outs. We don't prefer to buy a video game set. I said you know you are not going to get Nintendo he said "I know I'm not going to get it from you, but I might get it from him, alas, Santa, too let him down. I don't think that playing a video game now and then is really harmful to children. But the children I know are so obsessed with the games that they prompted at least one 2nd grade teacher to ban the word Nintendo from the classroom. When I asked my 7-year-old if the teacher wouldn't let the kids talk about the games because that's all they were talking about he said "no that's all we were thinking about." Our society is so computerized and dehumanized those kids don't need one more reason to avoid playing outside.

Osama was assigned a big project in his social studies class. He wanted to do well on the project, but he knew it was a lot of work. He thought it would be boring, too. Osama had two weeks until the due date. Osama could have gone home and started the project. Instead, he put it off. He went skateboarding with his friends at the park, and he played video games with his brother. When his mom suggested he clean his room, Osama happily cleaned. He chose to do anything other than the project. Osama suddenly panicked as he remembered the due date. The project was due tomorrow! He hadn't even started. He was too afraid to tell his mom. She would not be happy about this. Immediately, Osama began scrambling to figure out how he could get the project done on time. At school the next day, Osama turned in his finished product. Osama was not proud of the work he had completed. He believed it would have been much better if he spent more time on it. Osama wished that he had been more responsible.
