Read the passage then answer the questions:

The Blue Whale is the largest animal in the world. It grows up to thirty- three meters in length and may weigh as much as 130,000kilograms. It is even bigger than the huge animals that lived on earth long ago. Some people think that the Blue Whale is a fish because it lives in the sea and has a tail like the tail of a fish. However, it is not a fish. Fish breathe water but Blue Whales breathe air. They can stay under water for about an hour but then they have to come to the surface to breathe. The Blue Whale has a thick coat of fat under its skin. This acts as a blanket to keep it warm. The number of Whales in the sea is becoming less every year. This is because men hunt them and kill them, for almost every part of a Whale's body can be used to make something useful.

1. Why do some people think that a Whale is a fish?

2. Is the whale the largest animal in the world?

3. Choose the correct answer:

1. Whale may grow to be .....

a. 33 meters long.    b. 30 feet    c. 7 or 8 meters    d. 100 meters

2. The layer of fat under the whale's skin .....

a. helps it to float.    b. keeps its blood warm.    c. helps it to breathe.    d. keeps its blood cool.

Read the passage, then answer the question below it:

MURPHY'S LAW

You invite your friends over to watch an NBA basketball playoff game on TV. There are plenty of sodas in the refrigerator, the popcorn is popping, and you are all set to watch the big game. You turn on the TV set, and all you get are fuzzy images on the screen. Is this plain bad luck or is it Murphy's Law at work? Murphy's Law states: If anything can go wrong, it might go wrong! Similar situations occur all the time. When you're in a hurry to open the door and you try several keys on the key ring, the last remaining key is usually the one that works. When you get in a line at the supermarket, you find you've chosen the slowest one, and it just doesn't move. Is this bad luck or coincidence? According to British physicist Robert Matthews, it's neither one nor the other. He explains that our selective memories tend to remember the bad episodes more readily than the things that usually work out. Also, the law of probability is more against us than in our favor in many situations. For example, in the supermarket with five cashiers, the chances of getting the fastest lane are 20 percent, and 80 percent for a slower lane. Matthews became a popular scientist when he proved that a piece of toast doesn't necessarily fall on the floor on the buttered side. BBC Television gathered 300 people to throw pieces of buttered toast up in the air and observe on which side they fell. Half fell on the buttered side, and half didn't.

1-What does the examples of the NBA game illustrate?

Read the paragraph then answer the questions:

Thousands of meteorites enter Earth's atmosphere and fall harmlessly to the ground each year. One widely accepted theory is that the impact of an asteroid 6 miles (10 kilometers) in diameter could have been responsible for the extinction of many life forms. In order to protect against such events (or at least reduce their effects), NASA has developed ways to monitor Near-Earth Objects (NEOs). Scientists believe that Eros might strike Earth in 1.5 to 5 million years. The probability of one of these Near-Earth Objects hitting Earth over the next hundred years is virtually negligible. However, scientists are concerned, because at present, there are about 900 asteroids circulating our solar system. If an asteroid the size of Eros fell on Earth in the middle of the Atlantic, it would have catastrophic effects. Thousands of nuts, bolts, and other debris from space missions form an orbiting garbage dump. Some of these bits and pieces fall back into Earth's atmosphere and behave just like any other meteor. According to NASA, there must be over 100,000 objects with a diameter of one to ten centimeters floating around space. The U.S. Space Command is aware of the threat of an orbital impact during space missions and monitors this junk constantly. The agency estimates that there might be more than 3,000 satellites orbiting Earth. Some scientists speculate that one day there might be orbiting "garbage collector" machines to pick up the debris. Since the space surveillance mission began, almost 17,000 objects that were tracked re-entered Earth's atmosphere. Most objects that re-enter the atmosphere either burn up or re-enter over water. As a result, the risk of someone getting hit on the head by one of these objects is very remote. Nearly three-quarters of the planet is covered by water, and large areas of Earth's land are uninhabited.

1. What does (NEOs) mean?
2. How many meteorites enter Earth's atmosphere each year?
3. What happens to most objects that re-inter the atmosphere?
4. What would happen if an asteroid the size of Eros fell on Earth in the middle of Atlantic?
5. Write (T) for true and (F) for false statements:
  - a- NASA has developed ways to monitor Near-Earth Asteroid Rendezvous (NEAR). ( )
  - b- Near-Earth Objects may hit Earth over the next hundred years is virtually negligible. ( )

Friendship is More Important

Friendship is very important in our life. I have many friends but my best friend is Saleh. Last week, we went out for lunch at one of the famous restaurants. When we finished, I discovered that I had forgotten my wallet so, I asked Saleh to pay the cheque but he said he didn't have any money. I decided to let it go and keep my friend. I called my brother to bring my wallet to pay for the lunch.

My Cell Phone

Last week, I bought a new cell phone from a big store in the city Centre. When I went home I took it out to try it but I discovered that it didn't work. I went back to the store but they told me that they wanted the package intact. I got angry and told them I tore it to try the cell phone and asked to see the manager who apologized and replaced the cell phone with a new one.
