

Q.1. Comprehension:Read the following passage:

Once, many years ago, there was a fair. There were games, rides, and clowns at the fair. Of course, there was ice cream too. What's a fair without ice cream? It was sold in small dishes. Everyone ate ice cream with a spoon.

One man who sold ice cream ran out of dishes. "I can't sell my ice cream." The ice-cream man looked sad. "I have no more dishes." The man next to him sold waffles. He was the ice-cream man's friend. The waffle man was sad because his friend was sad. So he thought and thought. Then he picked up a waffle. He rolled it in his hand. He made it into a cone shape. The waffle stayed in that shape. "Here, put the ice cream in this" He gave the waffle to his friend. The ice-cream man put ice cream in it. And he sold it.

"Um, it's good." A little girl tasted the ice-cream cone. Then a man and his wife tasted one.

Soon everyone wanted ice cream in a rolled-up waffle. That's how ice-cream cones were invented.
