

The car is one of the greatest inventions of the modern world. Cars convey us from place to place quickly. However, every year, road vehicles kill and injure thousands of people. Cars also produce poisonous gases that make people sick when they breathe them in. So, factories have to produce vehicles that are as safe as possible. Also, governments must make rules to make people safer drivers. Today, cars are much faster than they were in the past. However, they are also stronger. Strong cars help people by protecting them during accidents. Two other things that make cars safer are seat belts and air bags. Today, they also have much better brakes. Good brakes make it possible to stop very quickly.

Reading

Read the passage and then answer the questions below:

In recent years, job stress has become a growing problem. In the U.S., three out of every four people say that their job is stressful. And the United Nations' International Labor Organization has said that work stress has become a global issue. What has caused work to become so stressful in the last 20 years? One reason that jobs have become more stressful is technology. Computer technology is changing quickly. This means that people constantly have to learn new ways to do their work. Another reason that jobs have become more stressful is that people work more now than they did in the past. They take fewer vacations and work more hours per week. Stress is bad for your health. It can cause physical problems, like a heart attack, or mental problems, like depression. So, what can you do to avoid job stress? You should talk to your boss when you feel that you have too much work to handle. And you should make sure that you have enough time in your schedule for relaxing, fun activities that are not related to work.
