1- Read the passage and then answer the questions below:

There are a great many different ways to communicate today. We correspond by email, fax, letter, telephone, and cell phone. Every day, electronics and technology help make communication clearer and faster. Samuel Morse developed the Morse Code in the 1840s. This type of communication uses a system of short electrical signals called "dots" and long electrical signals called "dashes" to communicate. Before telephones, Morse's system was used for rapid communication in Europe and America. Wooden poles carrying wires were set up so the electrical signals could be sent over the wires from one place to another. One person would tap out the code while a person in another place would listen to the message, write the code down, and translate it into letters and words. This "telegraph" system was widely used during the 1800s. Although it seems slow now, compared to today's technology, Morse Code is still sometimes used when emergencies occur today. This type of communication works best because it gets through interference better and works with very simple radios. Sometimes this is the only and best way to communicate during emergencies.

2- Read the passage and then answer the guestions below:

In recent years, job stress has become a growing problem. In the U.S., three out of every four people say that their job is stressful. And the United Nations' International Labor Organization has said that work stress has become a global issue. What has caused work to become so stressful in the last 20 years? One reason that jobs have become more stressful than technology. Computer technology is changing quickly. This means that people constantly have to learn new ways to do their work. Another reason that jobs have become more stressful is that people work more now than they did in the past. They take fewer vacations and work more hours per week. Stress is bad for your health. It can cause physical problems, like a heart attack, or mental problems, like depression. So, what can you do to avoid job stress? You should talk to your boss when you feel that you have too much work to handle. And you should make sure that you have enough time in your schedule for relaxing, fun activities that are not related to work.

Road accidents are very common these days. These accidents have made human life quite unsafe. They are the result of rash driving and breaking the traffic rules. The traffic rule that people break the most is jumping red lights, which means they keep driving even when the signal is red. Another bad habit is using mobile phone. Simple wishes in life, but I believe when we wish sincerely, it would become true.

Reading

1- Read the passage and then answer the questions below:

There are a great many different ways to communicate today. We correspond by email, fax, letter, telephone, and cell phone. Every day, electronics and technology help make communication clearer and faster. Samuel Morse developed the Morse Code in the 1840s. This type of communication uses a system of short electrical signals called "dots" and long electrical signals called "dashes" to communicate. Before telephones, Morse's system was used for rapid communication in Europe and America. Wooden poles carrying wires were set up so the electrical signals could be sent over the wires from one place to another. One person would tap out the code while a person in another place would listen to the message, write the code down, and translate it into letters and words. This "telegraph" system was widely used during the 1800s. Although it seems slow now, compared to today's technology, Morse Code is still sometimes used when emergencies occur today. This type of communication works best because it gets through interference better and works with very simple radios. Sometimes this is the only and best way to communicate during emergencies.

In recent years, job stress has become a growing problem. In the U.S., three out of every four people say that their job is stressful. And the United Nations' International Labor Organization has said that work stress has become a global issue. What has caused work to become so stressful in the last 20 years? One reason that jobs have become more stressful than technology. Computer technology is changing quickly. This means that people constantly have to learn new ways to do their work. Another reason that jobs have become more stressful is that people work more now than they did in the past. They take fewer vacations and work more hours per week. Stress is bad for your health. It can cause physical problems, like a heart attack, or mental problems, like depression. So, what can you do to avoid job stress? You should talk to your boss when you feel that you have too much work to handle.
